Hand & Thread: The One Stitch at a Time
Schmid Center Gallery
November 8 – December 1, 2019

This exhibition brought together 22 artists who use the delicate medium of embroidery to address issues of social justice, environmentalism, racism, gender, immigration, and the U.S. prison system. While the "Hand" patiently makes stitch after stitch, the "Thread" is the one that holds it all together, the one that brings us together, the one that calls for resistance to influence social policy.

In association with "Hand & Thread," a film titled "Threads" presented a panel discussion about the exhibition. At the Conversation Between Artists event, each artist was asked to talk about their work, their inspirations, and what it means to them to be an artist. Dr. Karen Leader, Associate Professor of Art at FAU, and Dr. Jennifer L. Johnson, Assistant Professor of Art at FAU participated in a panel discussion moderated by Karen Leader. During the exhibition, visitors were invited to discuss their art and the role of art and craft in action today.

The exhibition presented historic photographs from the early 20th Century through the 1970s that were taken by students and faculty. The photographs in the exhibition ask viewers to consider how the students and faculty gained contemporary access to technology. In particular, the exhibition presents multiple examples of the students and faculty's desire to photograph underrepresented spaces or groups of people into the public sphere. The desire to photograph in a time period or region that create a collective memory of the past and the desire to photograph in itself makes a shared space. Among many others the exhibition included works by Lewis Hine, Paul Strand, Dorothea Lange, Walker Evans, Lange, Berenice Abbott, Helen Levitt, Albert Renger-Patzsch, Paul Strand, Garry Winogrand, Ed Ruscha, Fan Ho, Seydou Keita and Mario Alvarez. In addition, the exhibition included a presentation by Jeanie Anderson provided a guided tour of the exhibition for Museum Studies and Gallery Practice students. Dr. Michael J. Lutz also presented a lecture to a Photography class on how he developed his career as a professional photographer to educate himself on the medium.

Shared Space : New Era
Photographs from the Book of Americas Collection
Schmid Center Gallery
February 14 – April 11, 2020

Many of the most important moments of American Art in the twentieth century were shaped by international art photography and a fragment of that history is presented here. Dr. Michael J. Lutz and Mikhail Gorbachev signed the Intermediate Agreement on Economic Cooperation, the Berlin Wall fell. Other events like the birth of the Internet and the collapse of the Soviet Union are also represented in the exhibition.
